Technical Tips

This is a cross-sectional of what the gasket should look like at the top of the window.

Step number one is to insert the gasket over the body flange ALL OF THE WAY around the opening BEFORE you put the window up to the hole.

The "point" marked with an * must point to the rear of the car, all of the way around the gasket.

Silicone spray makes a good lubricant.

Don't give up even if it looks hopeless. I started at the top and worked down. When you finish, it'll look great!

I have just completed a rather thorough restoration of a '65 Ranchero. I found the Falcon News a valuable source of both parts and know-how. Having partaken of these fruits, I now wish to offer something in return.

When I bought my car it was a basket case. Among the problems I encountered was the previous owner's having cut the back window gasket all of the way around to get the back window out of the car. Much to my dismay, I found that the gasket (NOS) was unavailable anywhere. I was advised that Obsolete Ford Parts in Nashville, GA was considering reproducing the gasket--but that was scheduled for the future. I needed to keep out the rain now!

I remembered having installed a sliding rear glass in a friend's F-100 truck, vintage 1974, and I believed the glass to be installed in the same manner, although the Falcon glass is considerably smaller. So I ordered the gasket, thinking that I would just cut four sections out of the rubber at the straight parts on the ends and top & bottom. When the gasket came--much to my surprise, it had no pre-moulded corners. That is, it was as if Ford had pulled it off of the roll and joined it at the ends. It was in the form of a big circle. After painstaking measurement and considerable confusion about inside-out and visa versa, I cut exactly 15 1/2" from the gasket. To make a long story short, its fit is perfect. In order to seal it completely, I just got some black GE silicone seal and put it between the ends of the gasket.

The part number of the F-100 gasket is D372-1042084-A. It is the rear window gasket for a 1974 Ford F-100 Truck.

I have included a rough drawing to illustrate how the gasket goes in the car. A word of caution: when you first slide the gasket into place it looks ok; when then you slide the glass up into place, it looks like a hopeless cause. Don't give up. I have included some miscellaneous instructions on the drawing.

Hope this helps some members who face the same problems that I did.
